2. kain's countenance fell
3. between bronze walls
4. i raised this stone as a ghastly memorial the raubkauf series continues to raise memorials to memorable maschinenfest performances; and including a band like the ruins of beverast among the roster of electronic artists was one of the things (among others) that made maschinenfest so special.

in 2013 meilenwald, sole member of trob, had released his 4th t.r.o.b. album „bloodvaults“, which took the final step from black metal to his unique fusion style that embraces doom, dark and ambience to create haunting anthems. also, this was the year he gathered a group of musicians to present his art, which had become a critics' favourite long before, live on stage.

the maschinenfest crowd cordially embraced the mixture of led-heavy riffs, grunts and morose moods of course, so this is a very necessary statement for open-mindedness, and simply a great 45 minutes of extreme music, and a special retrospective of the ruins of beverast's formative period.

recorded live at maschinenfest. turbinenhalle oberhausen, germany, 11. october 2013. artwork by salt.
this tape includes an mp3-download-code. released by raubbau and pflichtkauf.
